

Abstract

A heat dissipation platform for output switches of an inverter power source of an electric arc welder where the platform comprises a conductive plate with first and second parallel surfaces and a plurality of parallel heat pipes embedded between the surfaces and extending in a given direction and the switches are mounted on the first surface and are closely spaced from each other in the given direction of the heat pipes.